Dear scientists of class 6

Last week I broke my leg playing football.
This is difficult because I live in the top storey of a tower block, where the lifts don't work.

Not getting to school is ok but my business is going bust!

I keep chickens on the roof of the tower block

Every morning I sell the eggs to the flats around the estate.

I've been doing this since the beginning of year 6 to get money for tickets for the next European cup final but since I broke my leg there's a mountain of eggs building up in my bedroom and I'm desperate.

I've tried wrapping the eggs up and dropping them but they break and it's too far to lower them down to my customers.

HELP!

Tell me how to get my eggs down to the ground in one piece!

Yours hopefully Ahmed Smith

PS This is a list of stuff around the flat that might be useful.

Newspapers; brown paper; sellotape; nylon thread;
scissors; plastic lunch bags ; eggboxes.
